RISE OF PERSIA

BC 6 Achaemenid king Darius ended the period known as Lesser Persia, or Persia proper, the Medean Empire.
Darius ordered the Persian Empire into twenty provinces. Scholars are not clear on how exactly the Persian Empire was organized, but it was a federation of tributary states, with a satrap as governor.

BC 512 Achaemenid Megabyzos "Persian the Lesser" had Babylon revolt while Darius was campaigning in Thrace. Darius "the Lion" sent Otanes against the Ionian Rebellion. Bisutun inscription, Persian Empire, Darius the Great, Xerxes the Great, Persian Wars

527 Darius extends Persian rule through the Khyber Pass into the Indus Valley, conquering the Punjab, Sind, Baluchistan and Indus Valley Civilization

530 Persian Cyrus the Great, or Cyrus the Elder, conquered Bactria, Sogdiana, Gandhara, Sattagydia, and Arachosia, independent of the Chorasmian and a nomadic

539 The Achaemenid Persian Empire conquered Chorasmia, a region along Lower Amu Darya (Oxus) River, in modern Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, and Iran, and Cyrus the Great, founder of the Achaemenid Empire, Persia, or Medes, Persian, Scythians, Massagetae, Sogdians, Bactrians, Sarmatians, Chorasmians, Parthians, and other tribes and satrapies, their sons
